INFORMATION ITEM: Academic Program Review

BACKGROUND INFORMATION:

UNCG is beginning the process of prioritizing academic programs, to position the University to be as strong academically as possible while maintaining a sound balanced educational program that is consistent with its mission, strategic plan, and its functions and responsibilities as an institution of higher education. Rebecca Adams, Associate Provost for Planning and Assessment will provide an overview of the Academic Program Review Process Committee’s work in creating the process and criteria for this review. Roy Schwartzman, Professor of Communication Studies and Chair of the University-Level Academic Program Review Committee will discuss the values that will guide the evaluation of programs by the University-Level committee. Provost Perrin will review the communications plan being implemented for internal and external constituencies throughout the academic program review process.
