CHAIR’S REMARKS:

Chair Hayes began his remarks by welcoming everyone and reminding the board that Commencement would take place this week. He also congratulated Joseph Graham on his upcoming graduation and indicated that his presence on the board would be missed.

Chair Hayes highlighted several events he attended since the last meeting. He went to Raleigh in February with Chancellor Gilliam and fellow board member Susan Safran, meeting with several legislators and attending a session during which a resolution was read in the house and senate chambers congratulating UNCG on its 125th anniversary. He indicated that UNCG is well-known and that the unique contribution that the university makes is highly respected.

In April, several board members served as judges for the 5th Annual Graduate Students Research Expo presentations and were impressed by the world class training UNCG offers.

Chair Hayes also attended the Student Excellence banquet. He was especially impressed by a student who had completed 100 hours of community service in a single semester. UNCG students perform over 600,000 hours of community service a year. If quantified, that is a $14.5 million impact for the local community.
He also attended the Faculty and Staff Excellence Awards. Again, he stated that he continues to be impressed by the quality of faculty, staff and students who are associated with UNCG.

He noted that Margot Lee Shetterly, the author of the book, "Hidden Figures" will be the Commencement Speaker.

CHANCELLOR’S REMARKS:

Chancellor Gilliam began his remarks by highlighting recent achievements, events, and programs:

- The successful first year of Kaplan Center, Union Square Campus, and the Doctor of Nursing Program;
- 75th anniversary of Weatherspoon;
- 50th anniversary of Nursing, and 50th anniversary of Athletics in Division 1;
- Recognition by the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation and the Chronicle of Higher Education for UNCG’s student success initiatives;
- “On the Road” events visiting alumni to encourage them to continue to support UNCG.
- External reviews of several units that will enhance the efficiency and practices of the university; and
- Hired 16.5 FTE new faculty. He emphasized that the searches have resulted in hiring highly qualified faculty and he spoke of the university’s commitment to attracting only the highest qualified persons for each position. In some cases, UNCG has been able to attract faculty from states that are disinvesting in higher education.

The Chancellor reported that a committee was, at the board’s direction, established to address the changing of the name of the Aycock Auditorium. The committee, composed of a cross-section of students, faculty, and staff, unanimously agreed to recommend that UNCG should maintain the current name, the UNCG auditorium, until a more appropriate and less emotional period of time has elapsed and suggested that at a future date, the discussion could be re-visited.

Chancellor Gilliam reported that the General Administration has shared its strategic plan. Each university is addressing and attempting to align its plan with that of the Board. Each campus was asked to name its areas of distinction. UNCG indicated that the Arts and Culture and Health and Wellness would be the focus. UNCG’s submission was the first and became the template for the other state universities.

Chancellor Gilliam reported that the Senate budget has been released. Enrollment growth is fully funded. There is an allocation for the Data Modernization Initiative, but it was not fully funded. In addition, he mentioned a Flex Cut that will impact UNCG.

The Chancellor ended his remarks by reminding the Board that UNCG will have an extraordinary year of celebration for the 125th anniversary. He added that the university’s Strategic Plan is nearly complete. In addition, the proposal for the Millennial Campus will be presented to the Board of Governors in the next week. He anticipates that the Board will approve the request.

Finally, he presented Joseph Graham with a crystal Minerva apple on behalf of the Board and wished him the best as he moves on to pursue a graduate degree at American University.
